Information Regarding the Japanese Government Deferred Tuition Payment System for Tuition Fees for Master's Students

Those who have been confirmed as eligible for the “Deferred Tuition Payment System” through the "JASSO Scholarship Reservation Program for Graduate Schools" offered in October 2024, or those who have been confirmed as eligible through the university's screening of their household finances, may receive support under the “Deferred Tuition Payment System” by following the prescribed procedures after entering the Master's program. Those who wish to use this system after enrollment and have undergone a preliminary review prior to the enrollment procedure and have been confirmed as meeting the qualifications will be eligible for deferment of payment of academic fees and other payments at the time of the enrollment procedure. Those who wish to use this system and apply for deferment of payment must follow the procedures below.

*If you have not undergone the preliminary review, or if you are found to be ineligible through the preliminary review, you will not be eligible for the deferment of academic fees and other payments at the time of enrollment procedure.

Details after enrollment will be posted on the SPIRIT Scholarship website in late March. Be sure to review the information if you plan to apply.

Procedures for Deferment of Payment

Those who wish to use this system must complete the following procedures after the results are announced. For details, please refer to the “Enrollment Guidebook”, which can be viewed after passing the entrance exam.

*Please note that some graduate schools may only have a short period of time between the announcement of final results and the procedure deadline.

*Please do not “pay the enrollment procedure fee” and “submit the enrollment procedure documents” until you have received the results of the preliminary review.
